

Meet Sue Dubman, researcher and PD patient advocate

Dubman und or type unknown

Sue Dubman, researcher and PD patient advocate, taken in December 2014 at UCSF when Diane Stephenson, CPP director, visited Sue in person for the first time. Sue has been instrumental in the genesis of CPP by contributing her expertise, sense of urgency, and knowledge to all stakeholders regarding the importance of data sharing and innovation in data science. Considered a thought leader in clinical- and bio-informatics, Sue is widely recognized for her achievements in the implementation of data standards-based solutions as well as standards development, management and governance of data standards. Sue is actively involved in helping other people living with PD.